

Yukata

Made in Japan.

The name "Yukata" comes from "Yu" (bath) and "Katabira" (under-clothing). About 1,000 years ago, Court Nobles wore "Yukatabira," which were made of linen, when taking a bath. It gradually became worn by warriors as well, who would, after taking a bath, use it as a way of drying the body. The general public began to wear them about 300 years ago, when the sophisticated Japanese public bath became popular. They were then made of cotton and were used every day as casual clothing after taking a bath. It has only ever been made in 2 colors, blue and white. Now, it is widely used for everything from the traditional Japanese dance and casual wear in the summer, to simple night attire.
